

As an Indiana resident, I urge you to dismiss the petition 02-278 which will weaken our Telephone privacy law by allowing banks to be able to call those that they have a "relationship" with whenever they want. Eventually that will be far more than their current customer base as people change banks. It could be loosely considered a relationship even if people no longer bank at that bank. The weakening of the Telephone Privacy law with this petition will only be the beginning, soon other businesses will submit similar petitions wasting our taxpayers money and making the Telephone Privacy law completely useless.
